

Chester Himes (Black Americans of Achievement)

A biography of the black novelist renowned for his series of detective stories.

Lawrence P. Jackson's sad biography of Chester B. Himes (born in 1909) is an account of an African American writer's attempt and largely failure to become a success. Himes was awarded the American Book Award for Lifetime Achievement. This article examines the early expatriate career of Chester Himes, and the concept of a Black Atlantic cosmopolitanism that allowed African American writers to achieve success. Himes' achievement was limited to a single day, culminating in his death. This essay aims to outline the evolution of Afro-American detective fiction by looking at Himes' African heritage as well as his African American cultural achievements. Himes followed, once again using the detective novel format to write a classic restored-the complete and unexpurgated text of a great African-American writer's brutal and lyrical novel of prison life.
