

The Wonderful Century, Its Successes and Its Failures

And these are ours to-day !T he boundless flood Of infinite Research the ocean vast Ofendless exploration and our barque Of Science builded, fairly launched at last, Captain dby Thought by Reason piloted Sails forth upon the venture and to us, To search the shores of Doubt in midnight hid ;T ogive, if such there be, new Worlds to light, And that we have, with better day make bright. J. II. Dell. Every young soul, ardent and high, rushing forth into lifes hot fight; Every home of happy content, lit by loves own mystical light; Every worker who works till the evening, and earns before night his wage, Be his work a furrow straight drawn, or the joy of a bettered age ;E very thinker who, standing aloof from the throng, finds a high delight In striking with tongue or with pen a stroke for the triumph of right, All these know that life is sweet; all these, with a consonant voice, Read the legend of Time with a smile, and that which they read is Rejoice !S ir Lewis Morris. If thou would st make thy thought, Oman, the home Where other minds may habit, build it large. Make its vast roof translucent to the skies, And let the upper glory dawn thereon, Till morn and evening, circling round, shall drop Their jewelled plumes of sun-flame and of stars. Tiomas Lake
